AWE's March event - Creativity and Entrepreneurship

Friday, March 22

2:00 – 4:00 PM

Talley Student Union, Raleigh, NC 27606 - Room 4280

We are reminded on a daily basis of the success stories in technology, biotech engineering, and the like; but what about people who are working on enterprise-building in the creative arts? Our speaker, Dr Gary Beckman, Director of NC State's minor in Arts Entrepreneurship, will lead a discussion about creating value and communicating your work in this important sector. Dr Beckman will be joined by a panel of local professionals making a living in the arts space. Please join us for an afternoon of important conversations and meaningful camaraderie. Refreshments provided. As usual, all AWE events are FREE and OPEN TO THE PUBLIC.

Party like it's April 2019

Skills. Swap. Social.

Whether you are looking for help or wanting to offer your skills, this meetup is the perfect place to network! Join us on April 23, 7:00 - 10:00 pm for a night of fun and socializing. For our last event of the year, we are hosting our event in "Imurj - The Artists' Cafe" in downtown Raleigh.

Meet Rebecca Jones

Rebecca Jones

Rebecca is a second year veterinary student from the College of Veterinary Medicine. She is originally from New Jersey, where she unfortunately learned to drive. She lived in Philadelphia before moving to North Carolina for vet school, and although she is enjoying her new home, she still fiercely loves the City of Brotherly Love. Rebecca is interested in both business and public health and wants to use her career to benefit people as much as animals. Rebecca sees business skills as a critical need for veterinarians to better serve animals and demonstrate their value to the public. She has two cats, Juniper and Aspen, and is always plotting to get a dog. In her spare time, you can find Rebecca planning her next travel adventure, rock climbing, or exploring Raleigh. Rebecca is thrilled to be serving as an AWEbassador for the College of Veterinary Medicine.
